ACRE Projects is pleased to present Permeable Images, a two-person exhibition with work by Jesse Ly and Maven Kennedy. This exhibition captures the interconnection between the artists' respective practices, which both situate similar concerns in the relationships between material and representative re-creation. Ly and Kennedy's processes engage shifting perceptions while being tethered to reality – notating both what falls between as well as their individual relationships with the liminal.

What is present? – What shows through? – What is held behind? – What is not?

These in-betweens play into the absurdities and ambiguities of collective forms of seeing and the capabilities of peering deeper into these barriers and contradictories. In Permeable Images, Ly and Kennedy highlight the commonality within their distinctive approaches, engaging thresholds of world-building through modals of comprehension and connection.

In Kennedy's work, shadows, rusty nails, architectural details, and stones from their time at ACRE are drawn, and screen-printed in natural dyes. They are then transformed into assemblages and installations that allow the viewer to look both at and through them; the imposed image and action of looking through the veil become part of the experience of looking.

Ly contrasts this with photographic rooted works that draw a tension between directness and ambiguity. Grounded in the perceptible and expanded in the emotive, they partner, group and connect their works through visual consistency and framing approaches to create an interplay between each work to expand the tethers to what they allow through. The pictorial indexes – occurred, made, and compiled create variance in what can be seen through and their reflexive properties.

We invite you to join us for the opening reception of Permeable Images on Friday, January 16 from 6-9 pm or during gallery open hours on Mondays and Wednesdays, 11am–3pm and by appointment.

They have been a recipient of CultureWorks Artist Opportunity Grants, an Individual Excellence Award from the Ohio Arts Council, a Regional Artist Renewal Grant via the National Endowment for the Arts, and was named a finalist for the Aperture Portfolio Prize in 2023.

Maven Kennedy's (they/them) practice is interested in how we archive a physical world in flux. Through hand skills including book and box making, natural dyeing, and hand stitching, Kennedy connects to the knowledge of generations of unknown hands who worked to hold their world together. Their work as a whole is interested in connecting two or more things that could seem separate or worn away from one another. Like dyeing and mending, the alchemy is in the labor and material itself, leading to transformation. They received a Bachelor's Degree from Northeastern Illinois University and MFA from Northern Illinois University where they were awarded the Helen Merritt Fellowship.

Kennedy has had solo exhibitions at Belong Gallery, SXU Art Gallery, Roman Susan, and Parlour and Ramp, as well as site specific installations at Charles Allis Art Museum, STNRD Exhibitions, the Terrain Biennial, and Purple Window Gallery. They have participated in artist residencies at ACRE, Ragdale, Roman Susan, Terrain Exhibitions, Awakenings, Lillstreet Art Center, and the Center Program and Bridge Program at Hyde Park Art Center. They currently serve as the Director at NEIU's Fine Art Center Gallery and teach at Northern Illinois University, their studio is based out of Chicago.
